Why you Should Attend?

Corporate governance is most often viewed as both the structure and the relationships which determine corporate direction and performance. The board of directors is typically central to corporate governance. Its relationship to the other primary participants, typically shareholders and management, is critical. Additional participants include employees, customers, suppliers, and creditors.

The corporate governance framework also depends on the legal, regulatory, institutional and ethical environment of the community. Whereas the 20th century might be viewed as the age of management, the early 21st century is predicted to be more focused on governance. The importance of corporate governance in today's progressive and aggressive business environment cannot be denied. According to the Financial Times, it's "crucial to the achievement of a new frontier of competitive advantage and profitability."

In this workshop, participants will have the opportunity to understand the fiduciary duties of directors and officers and also identify the fundamentals of disclosure.
